

Federal Emergency Management Agency

Date: _____

My name is _____. I am a damage assessment inspector contracted by FEMA (The Federal Emergency Management Agency) to verify damages to your home and personal property resulting from the recent disaster.

The FEMA Disaster Housing Assistance Program and the State run, Individual and Family Grant Program (IFG) will receive the collected inspection information. Inspectors from the SBA (Small Business Administration), the Red Cross, or your insurance company may also contact you.

Eligibility for assistance from the Disaster Housing Program and the Individual and Family Grant Program will be determined by using information gathered from your home inspection and the information you provided on your disaster assistance application. You will receive by mail, notice of your eligibility determination a few days after this inspection. If it is determined you are eligible for Disaster Housing assistance the letter will outline how FEMA assistance is to be used. If you are found ineligible for assistance the reason(s) for this decision will also be explained.

If the Small Business Administration (SBA) found you ineligible for a loan or you did not receive a loan information packet your inspection information will be forwarded directly to the IFG program. The IFG program may help cover losses to essential personal property loss and other expenses incurred as a result of the disaster. Like the Disaster Housing program, the IFG will contact you by mail and inform you of your eligibility determination.

If you have any questions regarding the various disaster assistance programs please call the Disaster Information Help-line at 1-800-525-0321.